From The Plains.

Manufacturing industries are prospering in our midst. The dynamite factory started here a short time ago is in full blast. They shipped a few days ago one thousand pounds, carefully packed, for the use of the Mineral Railroad Company, to aid them in their passage through the North mountain. Among their largest patrons is Carson & Sons at Riverton, they use it exclusively in blowing out rock for their extensive lime kilns. They pronounce it far superior to any article of the kind manufactured elsewhere.

That well known and popular, as well as efficient skillful expert in materia medica, Surgeon General Slaughter, expects to open in a few days a large drug store and chemical factory for the manufacture of all kinds of patent nostrums, such as "Rough on Rats," "Nervine Pills" for Skilpots, "Solvent of Celery," "Buckeye Oxeye Beef and Iron Tonic" for the strengthening of the muscles; "Phosphorous Oxide of Potassium" for the brains and enriching of the medulla oblongata. He will also make a specialty of the manufacture of an eye-water to be known as "Chloride Fusioid Oxide of Dyno-Hypodermic Petroleum," which will prove one of the most valuable remedies known to medical science. He expects to ship large quantities to Arabia for the cure of pink-eye, amaurosis and all other impairments of the ocular organs, as the latest dispatches by Atlantic cable line is to the effect that all the inhabitants of Arabia are suffering from sore eyes. We hope that this wonderful solution will prove a perfect panacea to all the afflicted followers of Mahomet and result in immortalizing the name of our noble Surgeon General in the medical encyclopedia.

There is also a large and extensive "steam laundry" to be established and put in operation at this place by these enterprising and business men, R. A. Cockrill, Skilpot, Spennedyke & Co. The need of an enterprise of this kind is very obvious to the most casual observer, as nearly everybody is compelled to wear soiled linen owing to the absence of an industry of this kind, and the scarcity of water at this season. The senior member of the firm, Mr. Cockrill, expects to sail in a few days for Swampoodle to purchase five hundred improved "washing machines" and other appurtenances, for the use of the factory, from Skilpot, Bailey & Co. The Hon. Jas. McConchie, book-keeper and traveling salesman for the firm, expects to leave in a few days for "San Francisco," thence to sail for "Hong Kong" to secure, convey and bring on 200 "female celestials" of handsome and symmetric mould, who are experts in the laundry business to do the work on these soiled linens—collars and cuffs—military organizations to have preference over all civil "glee clubs." Orders will be received, and contracts entered into at once. Sealed proposals only recognized—"Nous Verrons." NE PAUL.
The Plains, Va., April 9, 1888.

METHODS OF SKIN GRAFTING.—Surgeons are familiar with skin grafting in the human subject, but it is rather a novel procedure to substitute the skin of birds and poultry for scraps from the patient's own healthy skin. Wiesmann twice transplanted skin from pigeon to pigeon with success, and three times from fowl to fowl. Under the title of "Dermapenthesia," Mr. G. F. Cadogan-Masterman has published some interesting cases, in which he had succeeded in utilizing the skin of young wild rabbits for the purpose of bringing about the cicatrization of raw and ulcerating surfaces. Several others have reported and varied Wiesmann's experiments, but before Mr. Masterman none of them seems to have been enterprising enough to spare their patients the disagreeable snipping incident to the operation as it is usually practiced. At about the same time Dr. Redard communicated to the Paris Academy of Medicine some observations of his own with animal grafts on wounds in human beings. In a case of severe burn of the scalp of eight months' standing, in a child 2 years of age, he obtained a rapid cicatrization by means of grafts from a fowl. He first tried grafts of frog's skin, but as these proved to be repulsive to patients and did not give very good results, he substituted others from the fowl, and the wound, which measured three inches by two and a half, had completely healed in two months. He had been equally successful in other and subsequent cases. He takes the skin from beneath the wing of a chicken, carefully securing the subjacent cellular tissue, but avoiding adipose tissue. The transplanted pieces varied from a sixth to a third of an inch in size, and they were maintained in position by means of a little cotton wool and iodoform gauze. The skin of birds and fowls has the advantage of being supple, delicate and vascular; it adapts itself readily to the surface of the wound, and adheres without undergoing absorption.—British Medical Journal.
